

As they are fugitives from justice they have no rights that any country is compelled to recognize, and the only thing they can do is to take their medicine like little men. They can not desert from the Mexican army as they escaped from the canal camp. They will also find that the prison "snake den" is a paradise compared with the mode of punishment inflicted on unruly "volunteer" soldiers in the Mexican army.—Sentinel.

CATTLE RUSTLERS.

Sent To The County Jail From Fredonia For Illegal Branding.

Cass Lewis, justice of the peace of Fredonia precinct, and Chas. Little, constable of the same precinct, were in Flagstaff this week. They brought in with them Lee Brown, William Beck and Otto Honester charged with illegal cattle branding and they were lodged in jail to await the action of the grand jury.

The cattleman of the vicinity of Fredonia have been losing cattle and a few weeks ago they started an investigation which resulted in the arrest of Lee Brown, William Beck, Otto Honester and Layton Button. They were taken before Justice of the Peace Lewis and all were held to appear before the next grand jury. Button gave bail and Beck furnished bail after being brought here.

The cattlemen of Fredonia think that the present arrests will put a stop to the stealing in that section, if not more arrests will follow.

Messrs. Lewis and Little started on their return to Fredonia Wednesday. They have to travel 235 miles to the county seat, and they expect to be here at the August term of court.

Three car loads of volunteers bound for the Philippines were on No. 1 passenger train this morning. They were from Kansas and were recruited to fill up the quota of the First Kansas volunteers now at San Francisco. They were a fine lot of young men and were in excellent spirits.
